

ORLANDO W. POWERS DEAD.

Ex-Justice in Utah and Former Prosecutor Against the Mormons.

Special to The New York Times.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Jan. 2.—Orlando Woodworth Powers, who was Chairman of the Gentile Party of Utah against the Mormons in 1888, and special representative of the United States Government in the enforcement there of the Edmunds-Tucker act for the suppression of polygamy, died yesterday at his home in Salt Lake City.

After acting as special prosecutor against the Mormons, 4,000 of whom he sent to prison during his terms as prosecuting attorney or during his brief term as Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of Utah, to which he was appointed by President Cleveland in 1885, and from which he resigned a year later, he became the principal defender of the Mormons who indicated a desire to obey the law. Thereafter he successfully opposed any attempt to prosecute the people on religious grounds under the pretense of abolishing polygamy. Under his suggestion, nearly all the prisoners were released from jail and were permitted to return to their families.

Mr. Powers was born at Pultneyville, N. Y., June 16, 1851. He was educated at the Marion Collegiate Institute, and obtained his law degree at the University of Michigan in 1871. In the following year he was a candidate for member of the Legislature in this State, and was admitted to the bar in 1873. In 1884 he was delegate at large from Michigan to the National Democratic Convention, elected to the Utah Legislature in 1893, and in 1895-6 originated the plan of organization of silver delegates and placed John W. Daniel of Virginia in nomination as Vice President.

During the deadlock in the Utah Legislature in 1899 over United States Senator he was appointed by Acting Governor Nebeker to fill the vacancy, but declined. In 1908 he seconded the nomination of Secretary Bryan for President. He was the author of a number of law works on pleading and practice, and was associate counsel in the defense of Clarence S. Darrow at Los Angeles.

WALLACE BRUCE DEAD.

Author and Ex-U. S. Consul to Edinburgh Succumbs in Florida.

Wallace Bruce, author and former United States Consul to Edinburgh, died yesterday at his Winter home, De Funiak Springs, Florida. Besides being an author, he was an orator and a poet, and had spoken at many centennial and memorial occasions. He lived at 267 Stuyvesant Avenue, Brooklyn. Last Summer Mr. Bruce went to Florida with his wife and his two sons, Kenneth and Malcolm. News of his death was received by his daughter, Mrs. G. H. Abernathy, 411 Hancock Street, Brooklyn.

Mr. Bruce was born in Hillsdale, Columbia County, N. Y., on Nov. 19, 1844, a son of Alfred Bruce. He was graduated from Yale in 1867. He then engaged in literary work. Mr. Bruce was appointed our Consul at Edinburgh in 1889, and he served until 1893. He delivered the Burns anniversary addresses at Ayr, Edinburgh, and Kilmarnock, Scotland, and at Boston, Hartford, and Chicago. He spoke on Washington Irving at Shakespeare Grammar School at Stratford. He was President of the Shakespeare Society of Edinburgh and of the Florida Chautauqua at De Funiak Springs.

Mr. Bruce was the author of "The Land of Burns," 1878; "The Yosemite," 1879; "The Hudson," 1882; "From the Hudson to the Yosemite," 1884; "Old Homestead Poems," 1887; "The Hudson Panorama," 1888; "In Clover and Heather," 1889; "Here's a Hand," 1893; "Wayside Poems," 1894; "Scottish Poems," "Leaves of Gold," "Wanderers," "Centennial Edition of the Hudson," all in 1907.

FLAMEN B. CANDLER DIES.

Lawyer Who Had Practiced Here
Since 1860 Was Aged 76.

Flamen B. Candler, a member of the law firm of Jay and Candler, died of apoplexy last evening at 12 East Thirty-first street. He was taken ill on Dec. 19.

Mr. Candler was born in Cincinnati, Ohio, on Dec. 16, 1838. His mother, who was a daughter of Flamen Ball, is buried in Trinity Churchyard. Mr. Candler was educated in the College of the City of New York. He was admitted to the bar in 1860 and since that time has practiced law in this city.

For seventeen years Mr. Candler was a partner of the late Edgar S. Van Winkle. In 1869 the firm of Van Winkle, Candler and Jay was formed. This partnership was one of the oldest in the legal profession. When Mr. Van Winkle died the firm name was changed to Jay and Candler. Then Robert W. Candler, Mr. Candler's son, and Edger-ton L. Winthrop, Jr., were taken into the firm.

Mr. Candler's home was at Woodmere, L. I., where he had lived for fifteen years. Mr. Candler was a Republican.

John T. Willoughby.

John T. Willoughby, President of the New York and Brooklyn Brewing Company, and for many years active in Democratic politics in Brooklyn, died yesterday at his home in Babylon, L. I., aged 49 years. He was Presidential Elector in the last campaign, was Democratic State Committeeman from the Ninth Assembly District of Brooklyn, and was a personal friend of Charles F. Murphy. Mr. Willoughby was a member of the Brooklyn Lodge of Elks and the Holy Name Society of St. Joseph's Roman Catholic Church at Babylon. He was a widower, and left a daughter, Mrs. A. J. Romanga.

George W. Kittredge.

George W. Kittredge, a pioneer in the use of sheet metal for building ornamentation and author of "Kittredge's Metal Workers' Pattern Book," died yesterday in his home in Passaic, N. J., in the sixty-fifth year of his age. Mr. Kittredge was born in Dayton, Ohio. In 1879 he came to New York and devoted himself to the development of geometrical methods for laying out sheet metal workers' patterns. He was the editor of the technical journal Sheet Metal, and President of the Kit Kat Club. Mr. Kittredge is survived by a son, Clifford Kittredge.